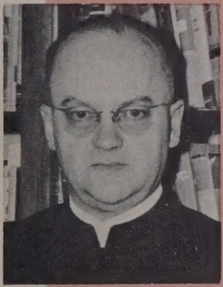
THE BIBLE FACULTY

J. Lawrence Burkholder
Leaves for Harvard

John C. Wenger
Heads Bible Department



TRANSITION between semesters proved more eventful than usual for the Goshen Seminary and College Bible Department. J. Lawrence Burkholder, professor of Bible and philosophy, left on Jan. 28, to join the faculty of the Divinity School at Harvard University. Taking his place as chairman of the Bible Department is J. C. Wenger, professor of theology.

At Harvard, Dr. Burkholder will serve as associate professor in a newly formed Department of the Church. He told a chapel audience in a farewell address that his appointment is part of a larger effort inaugurated by President Pusey when he became President of Harvard in 1953. President Pusey called for a new emphasis on theology and a reorganization of the Divinity School.

Burkholder was first called to be a consultant to the Divinity School. Analyzing their situation, he recommended the organization of a "Department of the Church" which would bring theological depth to matters of practical theology and training for pastoral experience. After he had presented his ideas the faculty voted to accept his recommendations and to call him to help develop the new department.

Harvard Divinity School is seeking an interest in the church as a whole. They are, Burkholder reported, seeking to discover new patterns of life within the church on a nondenominational basis, taking into consideration the facts of the changing world.

During his first semester at Harvard, Burkholder will teach a course in "Christian Discipleship," and spend most of his time exploring and planning his new field.

Many students, faculty members, and friends have expressed appreciation for the contribution the Burkholders have made at Goshen College since he joined the faculty in 1950.

Among other recent developments is the granting of a Th.D. degree to Paul M. Miller, the Seminary's professor of practical theology. His degree was awarded on Jan. 24, by the Southern Baptist Seminary in Louisville, Ky. Miller's doctoral thesis is on the subject, "Mennonite Theology and Mennonite Worship."

Howard H. Charles, professor of New Testament, has undertaken a one-year Teaching Mission in Japan and is leaving with his family early in February. Under assignment by the Mission Board in Elkhart, Charles will aid the emerging Japanese church through intensive Bible study meetings held in each local congregation, as well as through study sessions for the young national leadership and the missionaries.

Goshen's Dr. Roy H. Umble is the head of the busy Department of Speech at Goshen. His activities are as wide as his interests: in the photo above he is chatting informally with a member of his class in English proficiency for foreign students in an after class situation.

Contacts with individual students in extracurricular activities are numerous in Dr. Umble's day. Below, left, he confers with the student director of "Christ in the Concrete City," a religious drama. At right he is in the studio of Goshen's FM radio station, WGCS. He and a student announcer are preparing to record an interview on the nature of the church for later broadcast on WGCS.

Dr. Umble checks his agenda for the day. It will include classes, sessions in the studio of WGCS, a workshop for the debate squad, tryouts for the next campus speech contest, several committee meetings perhaps, and perhaps a play rehearsal. Of his office, Umble says, "I'm going to clean my office someday—but then people are so much more important than things."

"Here I am"

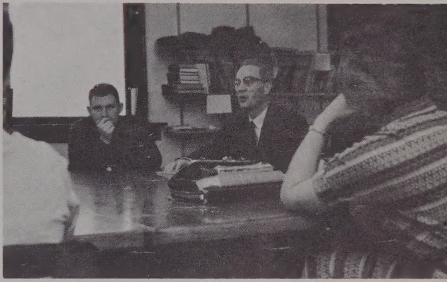
COLLEGE PROFESSORS are not "ivory tower people" as many have often pictured them to be. They are real persons with a definite job to do. They serve both on the campus and in the community and church. The life of a man like Goshen's busy professor of speech, Dr. Roy Umble, is far more than just preparing lectures, grades, and tests.

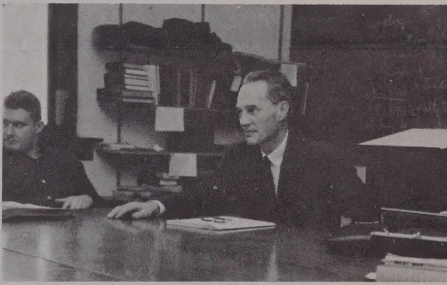
Dr. Umble illustrates the wide range of a professor's activities with his responsibilities in classes, chapel talks, or coaching speech contestants. He, along with other faculty members at Goshen College, is aware of the power of personalities and the need, in teaching, to really communicate with the students. Dr. Umble is most comfortable in a natural setting of conversation; a means by which all people tell their stories.

Conversation begins in the morning hours as he leaves the house for campus. In the office, a rapid glance indicates the day's agenda of classes, meetings, and conferences, not to mention snatches of sidewalk conversation and passing advice to a student announcer about the radio broadcast over the college station, WGCS.

His evening hours may be occupied with assisting the students in the production of the religious drama, "Christ in Concrete City," or teaching evening classes, or speaking at a community church. Somewhere during the demands of work and community service, Dr. Umble pauses to gather his thoughts and materials as the editor of the Adult Section of The Builder, a new leadership magazine for local church workers. As an end to the day, Roy, his family, and wife Fern often relax for a few leisure minutes about an evening fire.

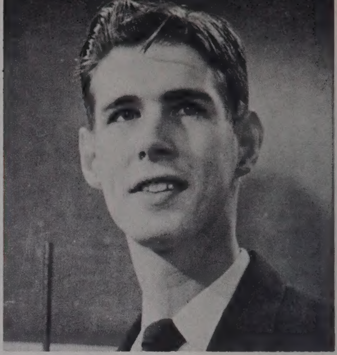
What is the contribution which he and other members of the Goshen faculty are making to the church and the college? Dr. Umble sums it up in a few words by saying, "Here I Am."





In the classroom Dr. Umble does as much listening (below) as lecturing (above). He feels that contacts with his students are most effective when they are conducted on the personal level.

MEYER DEAN AT BETHEL;
Teachers Added at Goshen



Albert Meyer

ALBERT MEYER, assistant professor of physics, has been granted a leave of absence by Goshen College for a period of up to five years in order to fill the position of professor of physics and academic dean at Bethel College in Kansas.

Meyer is a graduate of Goshen College (1950), and earned his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at Princeton University. The years 1953-57 he spent in Europe, studying physics at the University of Basel, directing Mennonite Central Committee efforts in France, and serving as executive secretary of the Puidoux Theological Conferences. He has been teaching at Goshen since 1958.

Second semester teachers at the College include several new persons who are teaching part time. Dr. Robert Buschert has a Saturday class in Analytical Mechanics. Buschert graduated from Goshen College in 1948 and is currently a member of the Purdue faculty. Teaching part time in the Bible Department is Dr. William Klassen of the Mennonite Biblical Seminary in Elkhart.

A course in Abnormal Psychology is being offered by Dr. Leonard Smucker, son of J. N. Smucker of Goshen, who travels to Goshen from the Norman Beatty Hospital in Westville, Ind.

Speech Correction is taught by David E. Yoder, a speech therapist from the Elkhart Rehabilitation Center and a Goshen graduate of 1954. Ann McAlister, Elementary Consultant in Elkhart County Schools, is teaching a course in Reading Problems. And a Goshen lawyer, Robert Hepler, teaches Business Law.

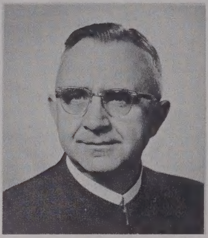
Joining the faculty on a full-time basis is Roman Gingerich, professor of physical education, who has been on leave for one and a half years.

PRESIDENT MININGER SAYS:

Responsibility for Our Heritage

One of the enduring purposes of Goshen College is to preserve and perpetuate the rich heritage of faith and life which is the possession of the Mennonite Church in America. Goshen College is basically a "conservative" institution in the sense that it is seeking to conserve the best in our heritage.

It is the task of the College to help students to understand and appreciate their heritage and to make it their own personal possession. To do this they must evaluate it in the light of the unchanging norms which are found in Christ and in the Bible, and they must make it relevant to their own needs and the needs of modern man. We also expect our students to enrich their heritage from their own experience, study, and insight and then witness to it to their own children and to the world.



In the midst of the many ideologies, pressures, and changes of today, one of the most important things to remember about our heritage is that it can easily be lost. Goshen College is dedicated to preserving, enriching, and perpetuating the best in our heritage.

HOW TO SPEND $20,000 ON BOOKS

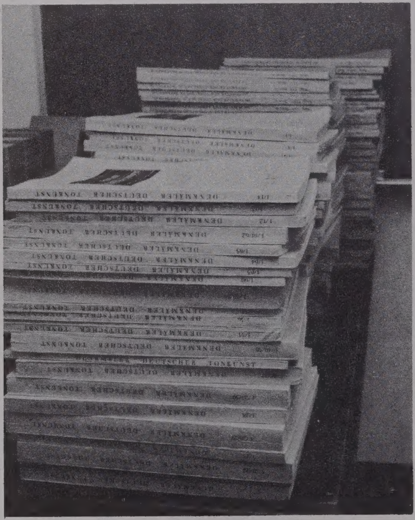
About a year ago in March, a letter from Lilly Endowment, Inc., initiated a stir between the library and the college departments as professors began to scan numerous book lists and rummage through files of already purchased books. Looking for serious gaps in their bibliographic sources, the faculty and students from various departments came up with a composite list of some 6,000 titles.

Librarian James Clemens is now in the process of purchasing these books with a $20,000 grant from Lilly Endowment. The total amount will be spent over a three-year period, with emphasis on English, history, and sociology.

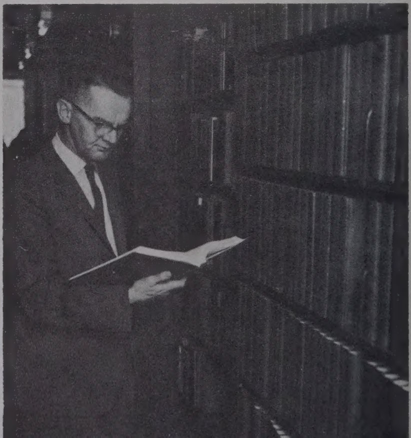
Already the library shows benefits from the grant. The library now possesses a 149-volume collection by Denkmäler der Tonkunst of historical editions of German, Austrian, and Italian music from the Middle Ages to the eighteenth century. This set is located in the Music Seminar room of the Arts building. Sizable amounts of the $20,000 grant will be spent for multi-volume reference sets, such as this one.

In the stacks of the library are 209 volumes of the Library of Congress Catalog which lists cards issued for all books printed in the United States and for the majority of English works published from 1900 to 1947. The addition of more Skira books has expanded the scope and range of materials on various periods of art and on individual artists.

This present collection of sets indicates only the beginning of a tremendous influx of books. To Mr. Clemens and his staff, this asset to the students means long hours of processing and shifting and relocating of books in the already overcrowded stacks and on shelves of the library reading room.



Multi-volume reference sets, like the ones pictured here, are being added to the Goshen library with money from a $20,000 Lilly grant. The Denkmäler der Tonkunst collection (above) includes 149 volumes of music—German, Austrian and Italian — covering a period from the Middle Ages down to the eighteenth century.



James Clemens, college librarian, examines one of the Skira art volumes recently added to the library holdings. The job of purchasing and processing the $20,000 worth of books is largely the responsibility of Mr. Clemens and his staff.

While the new books are a welcome addition, they do present a space problem since library stacks and bookshelves in the reading room (below) are already overcrowded.

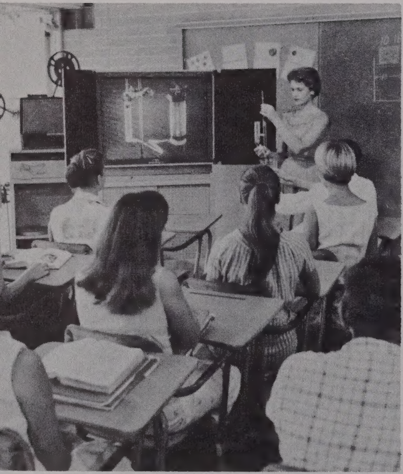
Goshen College Alumnus Initiates Development

A NEW LOOK IN AUDIO-VISUALS

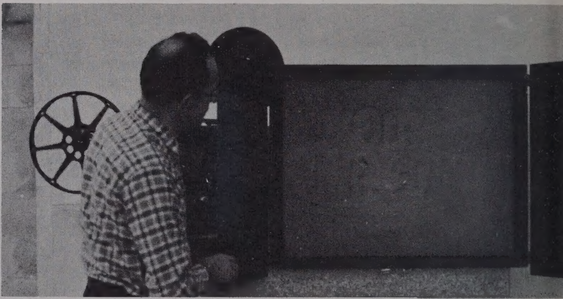
Teachers now have at their disposal a handy new projection unit for their educational films, thanks largely to the efforts of Ernest C. Shank, a Goshen College graduate of 1949.

Ernest is a science teacher in the public schools of Sarasota, Fla.

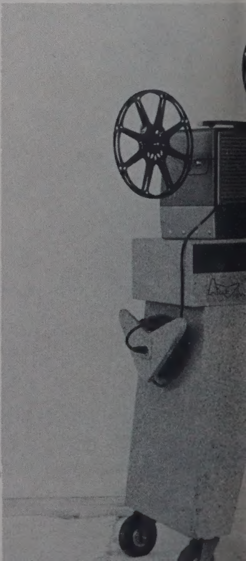
With one of these new "Audio-Viewers," there is no need to black-out windows, or to struggle with a screen, projector, speaker, extension cord, and film case. All necessary equipment is combined in one easy-to-operate unit which can be wheeled quickly into any classroom. Students stay at their own desks and have enough light to take notes. Windows can remain open for ventilation. And supervision of the class is made easier in a lighted classroom.



The rear-projection principle lets teachers show films in a lighted classroom.



Ernest C. Shank, a teacher in Sarasota, Fla., is operating one of the new "Audio-Viewers" which he helped to develop.



The "Audio-Viewer" uses a standard Bell and Howell projector, but combines projector, screen, and all other equipment in one easily portable unit which can be moved quickly into any classroom. The screen is equal to a 40-inch TV.

All this is accomplished by using the principle of "rear-projection." A high-quality plate glass mirror throws the image on to the rear side of a flexible Lenscreen, equal to a 40-inch TV.

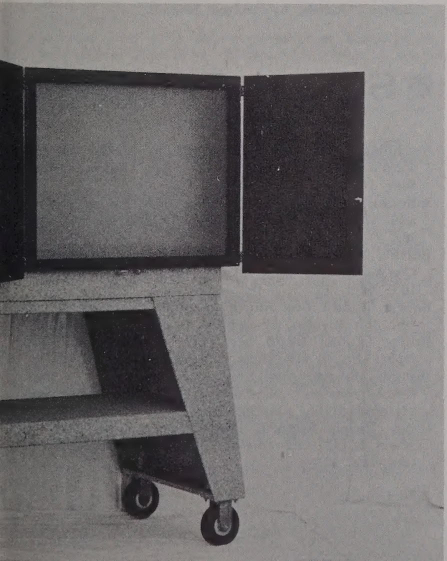
The idea of rear projection in lighted rooms has been known for a long time. But it was not widely used because the projection equipment was so bulky and cumbersome that it created more problems than it solved.

Working over a period of four years, Shank developed and refined the basic idea. He was working toward a practical and convenient rear-projection unit that could use ordinary Bell & Howell projectors without adaptation.

He was joined in the final stages of development by Russell Bagley, supervisor of audio-visual materials in the Sarasota County Schools. Together they formed a corporation and the "Audio-Viewer" was refined for quantity production.

In a little more than a year since their product has been on the market, it has been enthusiastically received. Buying an "Audio-Viewer" is far less expensive than providing a specially equipped audio-visual room, and yet in some ways is more satisfactory.

Their company is called the Sarasota Audio-Visual Corporation and they are now in the process of building a sales organization, and are displaying the unit at educational conventions throughout the country.



State Department Award

A GOSHEN ALUMNUS, Dr. Benjamin Gerig, was awarded a high citation by the U.S. Secretary of State last December. He was presented with a Superior Service Award for his many years as Director of the Office of Dependent Area Affairs which deals with colonial and trusteeship questions.

Mr. Gerig attended Goshen College in 1906. Graduate study for his doctor's degree took him to the University of Illinois and the University of Geneva in Switzerland.

He is acting United States representative on the Trusteeship Council of the United Nations and has participated in several UN visiting missions to Central Africa.

Gerig was on the United States delegation at the San Francisco Conference in 1945, when the Charter of the United Nations was drafted. He comes from Smithville, Ohio, where his father, Jacob S. Gerig, served for many years as a minister in the Oak Grove Mennonite Church.

Christian Herter, then Secretary of State, read the following citation as he presented the award: "His skillful handling of complex and varied problems over an extended period of time has greatly enhanced the position of the United States in the United Nations. His proven abilities in negotiation and in the representation of United States' interests have reflected great credit on the Department of State."

Bixler Produces Film

JOHN BIXLER, a GC alumnus of 1951 and a resident of Iowa City, Iowa, has produced a 25-minute movie film (in sound and color) dealing with music therapy as it is used among the handicapped children at the State University of Iowa, where he teaches. This film has since been shown coast to coast and on television.

John went to San Francisco, Calif., to present the film personally before a vocational convention of music therapists.

He and his wife, Rebecca (Troyer) 51, are active members of the First Mennonite church in Iowa City.

Personals

How many times have you read through your Bible from cover to cover? Mrs. Eliza Niccum, aged alumna (83 years old) of Elkhart, says she has been through hers more than 70 times. And she is still at it. Last year she read through her whole Bible three times. She is a member of the United Missionary Church in Elkhart.

Herbert Groh retired 13 years ago from a position with the Department of Agriculture in Ottawa, Canada. He still lives in Ottawa at 472 Highcroft Avenue. Groh attended a short-term course at Goshen from January to March of 1906. Then in 1918 he returned to Goshen as a short-term instructor in agriculture, working under Professor C. B. Blosser.

Louis L. Miller 16, retired minister of the Congregational Christian Church, is currently working on his second novel entitled The Swirl. He and his wife (Sadie Byler 18), now live in Normal, Ill.

George Bishop x34, is a wholesale poultry dealer living near Doylestown, Pa. Mrs. Bishop is the former Verna Smith 34. Their one son is a postgraduate student at West Nottingham Academy in Maryland.

Paton Yoder, GC alumnus of 1935 and a member of the faculty at Taylor University, gave an address at the alumni conference of Indiana University's history department last year. His subject—"The Early Trans-Appalachian Inn: Melting Pot or Stewing Kettle."

Leroy Kennel, a Goshen graduate of 51 and 53, teaches and is director of college forensics at J. Sterling Morton Junior College, Cicero, Ill. While at Bradley University, Peoria, Ill., for a speech tournament some months ago, he met Fred Speckeen 52, at a "Coffee for Coaches." Leroy and his wife (Pauline Graybill 53) and three children live in Lombard, Ill., where he is pastor of the Lombard Mennonite Church. He is also chairman of the Chicago Area Inter-Mennonite Ministers Association.

A note from Mahlon Stoltzfus of Russian Mission, Alaska, reveals that he and his family are planning to visit the "South 48" this summer. Mahlon 52 and Hilda (Mast) 52pt are self-supporting mission workers in Alaska. Their oldest daughter is now a freshman at Goshen College.

Elmer Wall (B.D. 56), is pastor of the Middletown Church of the Brethren in Ohio. Last year he was a part-time instructor in the Goshen Bible Department and served as pastor of the Warren Street Mennonite Church in Middlebury, Ind.

Allen G. Martin 59, of Nappanee, Ind., has been accepted for admission at the Kirksville College of Osteopathy in Missouri. He will begin his studies in September.

Elfrun R. Eggert x60, formerly of Elkhart, Ind., is newly appointed research assistant for the Parke Davis Company of Detroit, Mich. She will work in the microbiological research department.

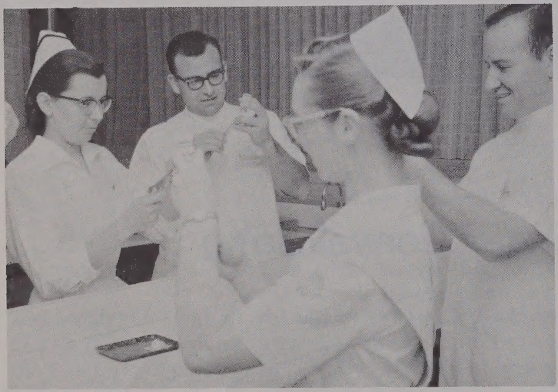
New opportunities for helping the sick are open to those who are trained for it. Men started entering the nursing profession about 15 years ago.



Men in the School of Nursing are enthusiastic about their studies. In four years they earn a college degree and qualify themselves to become registered nurses.

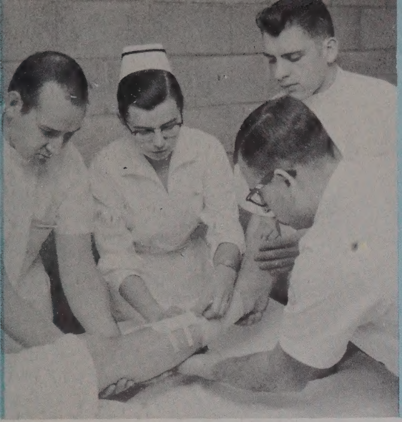
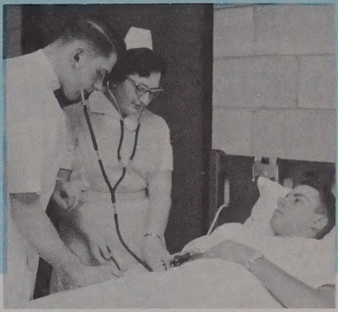
Donald Miller, a local doctor and president of GC's alumni, lectures to a nursing class.



Among Goshen's ten men in nursing are (l. to r.) Allen Bohn, Mark Jantzi, and Daryl Garber.



Men in the program say, "Mennonite young men are now faced with a new area of service."

MEN IN NURSING

Ask any of the ten men in the nursing program at Goshen about their motives and aims and you will receive varied but enthusiastic replies.

Those who are involved in the program find numerous reasons for being there; it may be to fulfill a desire to serve man or it may stem from an impressive past experience. Of this latter type comes the convincing response of Allen Bohn and Daryl Garber. Both of them served as I-W's in a general hospital. After their term of service officially ended, the two returned home to do the routine of work, but somehow they couldn't erase the desire to help the sick. If only a nursing program for men were available!

Across the lines of communications came word of what was happening at Goshen. Further investigation confirmed the reports and soon both men were enrolled as prenursing students at Hesston. Both Allen and Daryl transferred to Goshen where they are now sophomores in nursing.

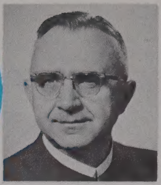
The other fellows, who are helping to pioneer this college program, strongly feel that it is a role opening a new career and life for men. This career may lead to a job in the hospital, to a teaching position, or to a place in public health or in industry. Also the nursing position offers itself as an excellent medium for Christian service.

Several students expressed their thinking that "as Christians . . . nursing offers us an opportunity of serving both God and our fellow men" and that "in nursing I can best serve God with the talents He has given me. . . ."

Actually the field of male nursing is not new; action began in 1945-46 when 42 men were admitted to various schools throughout the United States. Ten years later, 484 men were enrolled and by 1956, there were 1,037 men in various programs. The first Goshen graduate, Virgil Strahm, received his B.S. in 1959.

Two faculty members, Mary Alice Nofziger (l.) and Verna Zimmerman, make use of the nursing reading room.

PRESIDENT MININGER SAYS:



What Christ Means to Me

Condensed from a chapel talk.

I FIRST MET Jesus Christ when I was facing the problem of moral failure. Although I was but a young boy, I felt ashamed and guilty for certain things I had done. At this early date I learned that because of Jesus Christ and His death I had the promise of forgiveness and acceptance with God.

Christ met me again during my high-school days. Another moral problem brought the words of Romans 7 home to me: "I do not do what I want, but I do the very thing which I don't want to do." This was clearly my experience. It made me think of the time when I learned to ride a bicycle. Whenever I would try very hard not to hit some stone or obstacle in my way, I would hit it every time. So it is in the struggle against sin. I learned that Jesus Christ, and not self-effort, is the answer to sin and temptation.

Jesus met me again during my college career. Four of us were traveling from Newton to Hesston, Kans., in a Model T Ford, when another car hit us from the side. Although thrown quite a distance from the car, I got up and walked back. The other boys said I was hurt and they took me to a doctor. After he had sewed me up, he said, "Had this cut been just a little deeper, it would have cut the jugular vein." Life had been in the balances. And this is a pretty severe shock for a college boy.

In this crisis two things happened. First, I discovered that Christ can remove the fear of death. Second, I began to ask what I should do with my life. In the providence of God my life had been spared, and I began to wonder why. Was there some reason for this? I determined to live my life so as to carry out the purposes of Christ. Since He is working out these purposes in the church, I understood this to mean an identification with the program and mission of the church.

Christ has met me many times since then, especially in times of moral and ethical decision. In the midst of the complexities and difficulties of knowing right from wrong, Christ has led me. He has enabled me to make decisions where otherwise there would have been only bewilderment and despair.

Christ has also met me and has been with me in the midst of what few difficulties and major problems I have had. I have probably had less than my share of suffering and testing. To be sure, there have been doubts and disappointments; there have been responsibilities and frustrations, and a few discouragements. But I have probably had less than my share of these. However, in the midst of those which I have had, Christ has been a living presence. His grace has always been sufficient.

As I have grown in years and in Christian experience, Jesus Christ has become increasingly significant for me in all aspects of life. I must say that life for me has not been a vale of tears. It has not been a great burden; really, I have had a very rich and a full life and the gifts of God have been many. The goodness of God has, in fact, called me to repentance more often than have the difficulties and disciplines of life. I have enjoyed the love of a wonderful family and the companionship of many friends. I have enjoyed pleasant work and good colleagues to work with. I have had the opportunity for study and reflection, and during the years of my preparation, considerable leisure to think and to study and to live. These gifts have had meaning for me in proportion to my dedication to Jesus Christ.

Finally, Christ has also helped me in my search for freedom. I am a human being, and with you, I have sought freedom. I have found true freedom, but only because I learned that freedom in itself is meaningless. Freedom has meaning only in relationship to an individual's purpose in life. One needs freedom to achieve his goal. And Christ gives us this freedom when we dedicate ourselves to Him.

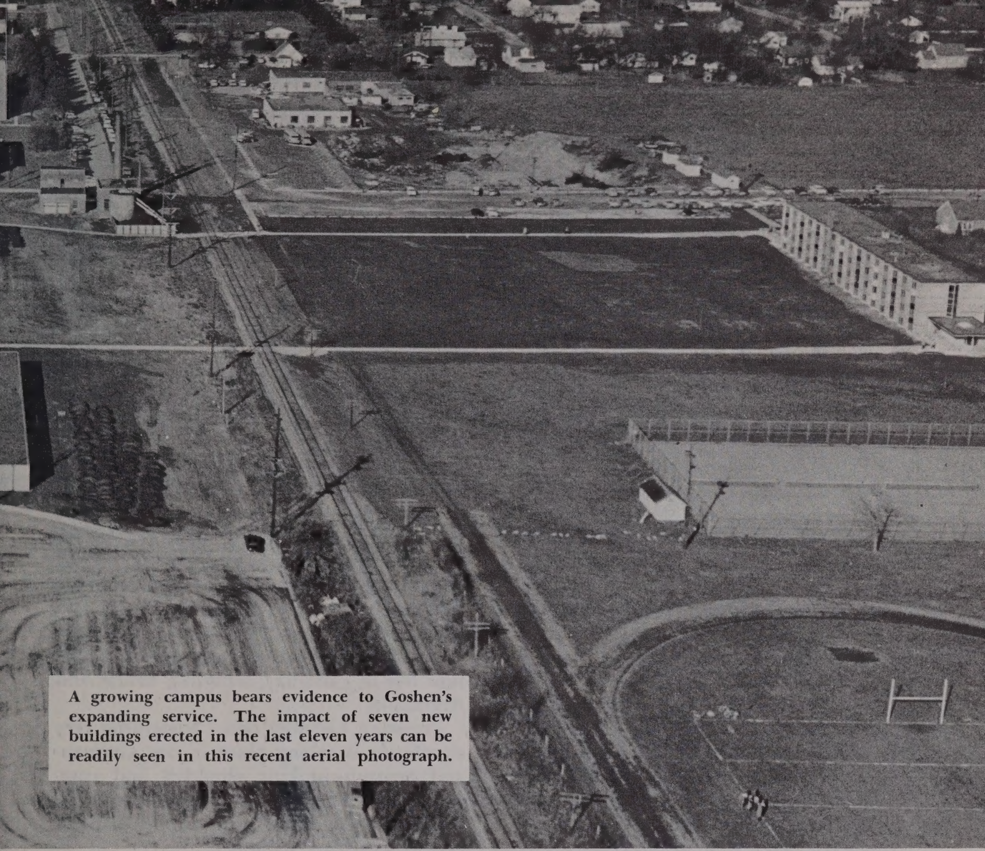
WHAT'S NEW?

WHAT'S NEW ON CAMPUS? A student will probably answer with "nothing" and a questioning look. But those graduates absent from the campus are amazed to count new buildings that were not imagined in their day. A quick tally of the new additions comes to seven—seven in eleven years. For the small college, Goshen readily indicates the forward surge in building development necessary to keep pace with the increasing student body.

Buildings do not make an education, but they certainly do make a campus and facilitate the teaching process. In the early stages of the campus, five buildings—North Hall, Coffman Hall, Science Hall, Kulp Hall, and the Administration Building—formed a nucleus. In 1940 the Memorial Library, that now contains over 40,000 volumes, was added to the core of structures. During the 1940's the war affected campus expansion.

But by 1949 the existing buildings became inadequate. The first project undertaken was the Union Building which houses a student center, bookstore, the physical education department, and an auditorium with a capacity for 2,000 persons. Three years later ground was broken for the Westlawn dormitory and dining hall.



A growing campus bears evidence to Goshen's expanding service. The impact of seven new buildings erected in the last eleven years can be readily seen in this recent aerial photograph.

A four-year pause was followed by four years of rapid building.

By 1960 five new structures dotted the campus, which by then had doubled its dimensions. High Park residence for 100 women extended the west edge of campus, while the Arts Building occupied the east side. The Arts Building, known by its glass-enclosed stair wells, is used by the Home Economics, Nursing, and Music departments. In 1959 the campus limits were moved to the south, where simultaneous projects began on the Church-Chapel and the seminary. The Church-Chapel, which is shared by the college and local congregation, brought a new aspect of worship to the college chapels, as well as a new stage in campus-community co-operation. The seminary provides for classrooms, offices, research facilities, a chapel, and library which, including the Historical Library, contains more than 25,000 volumes. (Total volumes for college and seminary are about 65,000.)

C. Z. Yoder men's residence (pictured on cover) was erected last year and was dedicated on April 21. This four-story, brick dormitory on the east bounds of the campus provides housing for 200 men.

This is the new, expanded campus that meets the visitor's eye. This is the campus that in the coming ten years must continue to transform itself to meet student and educational demands.

Busy president of the seminary in Montevideo is Nelson Litwiller, a Goshen graduate of 1925. He also serves as "Field Secretary for South America" under the Mennonite Board of Missions.

NEW SOUTHERN CAMPUS

A NEW SEMINARY CAMPUS is taking shape in Montevideo, Uruguay, and several Goshen alumni are playing a leading role in its development.

Just a little more than a month ago the 1961 school term opened on a new 3½-acre campus in the heart of Montevideo. A former estate with several large buildings has been purchased to serve as the base for this growing school.

Nelson Litwiller, a Goshen graduate of 1925, has served as president of the seminary since it was first organized in 1956. Although he has been a missionary in South America ever since college graduation, Litwiller has taken time out to complete graduate studies at Bethany Biblical Seminary in Chicago and Princeton Seminary in New Jersey.

The school is a co-operative venture sponsored by the several Mennonite denominations and ethnic groups with representatives in lower South America. These include more than 700 Spanish-speaking church members in Argentina, 1,000 Toba Indians of the Argentine Chaco who are affiliated with the Mennonite Church, and some 10,000 Mennonite Church members of Russian and Danzig background who now live in Paraguay, Uruguay, Brazil, and Argentina.

President Litwiller says, "Something very significant is taking place in our German- and Spanish-speaking churches and communities, where the Lord is leading us in preparation and testimony to a fruitful and far-reaching witness."

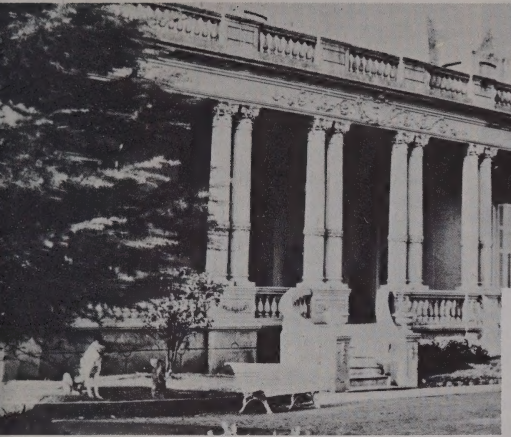
Besides serving as president, Litwiller teaches New Testament and practical theology. His wife, the former Ada Ramseyer, directs housekeeping activities at the seminary.

The other Goshen alumni associated with the seminary are Daniel W. Miller and his wife Eunice. Daniel received his B.A. at Goshen in 1945 and his Th.B. in 1946. Eunice graduated in 1947.

For graduate study, Daniel has attended the Biblical Seminary in New York, New York University, Eastern Baptist Seminary in Philadelphia, and the Universdad de Basilea in South America. He is Director of Studies and teaches courses in New Testament and Christian education.

Called the Seminario Biblico Menonita, the school offers four courses of study to meet the needs of various kinds of church workers. These range from a five-year curriculum for the Licentiate in Theology to a one-year course for laymen.

This building, another part of the 3½-acre estate purchased by the seminary, will serve as a dormitory.



This large estate building in Montevideo has been remodeled to house the classrooms, library, and administrative offices of the seminary.

This is "President Litwiller and his Cadillac."

Daniel Miller (GC '45) is shown teaching a first-year class in the seminary. Enrollment last year included 46 full-time and six part-time students.

The Brennemans of Doylestown

THE CONTRIBUTION of Dr. Paul G. Brenneman to the Doylestown, Pa., community extends considerably beyond the medical practice conducted at his office in New Britain.

He is, for example, an active member and Sunday-school teacher in the Doylestown Mennonite Church.

More unusual than this, however, is the development of his farm home as a recreation center for church and youth groups of the area. Doing much of the work himself, Paul has remodeled a large barn so that it has a hardwood basketball floor upstairs and a large meeting room downstairs. Shuffleboard and ping-pong equipment is also to be found there.

Behind the barn is a four-acre softball field. They also have a pond which is used some for swimming and for ice skating in the winter.

Groups use these facilities at least once a week throughout the year, Paul reports. Local youth groups often have their meetings and socials here. Besides this, there are Sunday-school picnics, family reunions, or meetings for groups such as the Mennonite Student Fellowship of Philadelphia or I-W men from Norristown and Philadelphia state hospitals.

Paul graduated from Goshen in 1944. He and his family (pictured above left) moved to Doylestown seven years ago after completing a term of medical service in Puerto Rico.

The Brennemans' farm has become a recreation center for young people from nearby churches.

Church Work and Business Combine

HOWARD RUSH x55, of Bristol, Pa., is a busy man. He is a Christian minister and shoe salesman combined, dividing his time between pastoral leadership of the small Bristol Mennonite Church and direct retail selling of footwear for Knapp Bros. of Brockton, Mass.

Howard and his wife Kathryn moved to Bristol in 1954, under the sponsorship of the Franconia Mennonite Board of Missions. His work in the congregation includes a full round of preaching, teaching, home and hospital visitation, plus conference and ministers' meetings. He finds this work challenging.

One of Howard's special interests is in "things Russian." This dates back to 1948-50 when he was a relief worker in Belgium. He says, "I am thrilled to know that Goshen is now offering courses in the Russian language. I had campaigned for this at GC a decade ago. If the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. are the two great world powers, we should know better how to communicate."

The Rush family lives in a large old farmhouse just across the Pennsylvania Turnpike from Levittown, Pa. All traces of the farm have long since vanished, however, and the house now stands in the midst of a rather cosmopolitan area known as "Magnolia Gardens." They feel it is a "great opportunity" to make acquaintance with their many Negro, Ukranian, and Italian neighbors.

Howard and Kathryn Rush, with their two girls and two boys, live in Bristol, Pa.

What goes here? The bishop (left) and the doctor are performing an operation together. It's only a pig, however, roasted Puerto Rican style.

Alumni Day at Goshen, June 3

NUMEROUS Goshen alumni are expected to return to the campus on Saturday, June 3, for the traditional Alumni Day.

Anniversary classes will hold their reunions at noon or in the afternoon. The Public Relations office is ready to help make arrangements for any class requesting assistance.

Climaxing the day is the annual Alumni Banquet with Dean Carl Kreider as the featured speaker.

John J. Hostetler, 1951, will serve as toastmaster. Toasts will be given by Samuel Burkhard, 1911; Walter Oswald, 1921; and Retha (Hostetler) Kauffman, 1936.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Collegiate Chorus.

Faculty Prospectus 1961-62

Marlin Jeschke, a doctoral candidate at Garrett Biblical Institute in Evanston, Ill., is one of at least four persons who have been appointed to join the Goshen College faculty this fall.

Jeschke will serve as Assistant Professor of Bible and Philosophy, with courses on both the college and seminary levels. He is formerly of Waldheim, Sask. Another new Seminary professor is Clayton Beyler of Hesston College, who has accepted a first semester assignment at Goshen.

A. J. Klassen, a graduate student at Wheaton College, has been appointed as Assistant Librarian in the Mennonite Historical Library. And Elizabeth Showalter, writer and editor from the Mennonite Publishing House in Scottdale, Pa., will join the faculty this fall as Instructor in English.

Four faculty members are returning to the campus after being absent on leave. C. Norman Kraus will return to his post in the Bible department after having earned his Ph.D. in Religion at Duke University, Durham, N.C. Lester Glick returns from St. Louis, Mo., where he earned a Ph.D. in Social Work at Washington University.

Atlee Beechy, Dean of Students, will be back on campus again after spending a year in India as a Fulbright lecturer. And Lester Zimmerman is coming back after a year of graduate study in mathematics at the University of Illinois.

As these teachers return others will be leaving. J. Howard Kauffman, Professor of Sociology, will use his sabbatical leave to carry out a research project on family life in Germany. This is a sequel to his doctoral thesis on Mennonite family life in this country. He has been invited to join the research staff at the University of Cologne where he will have access to their research consultants and resources.

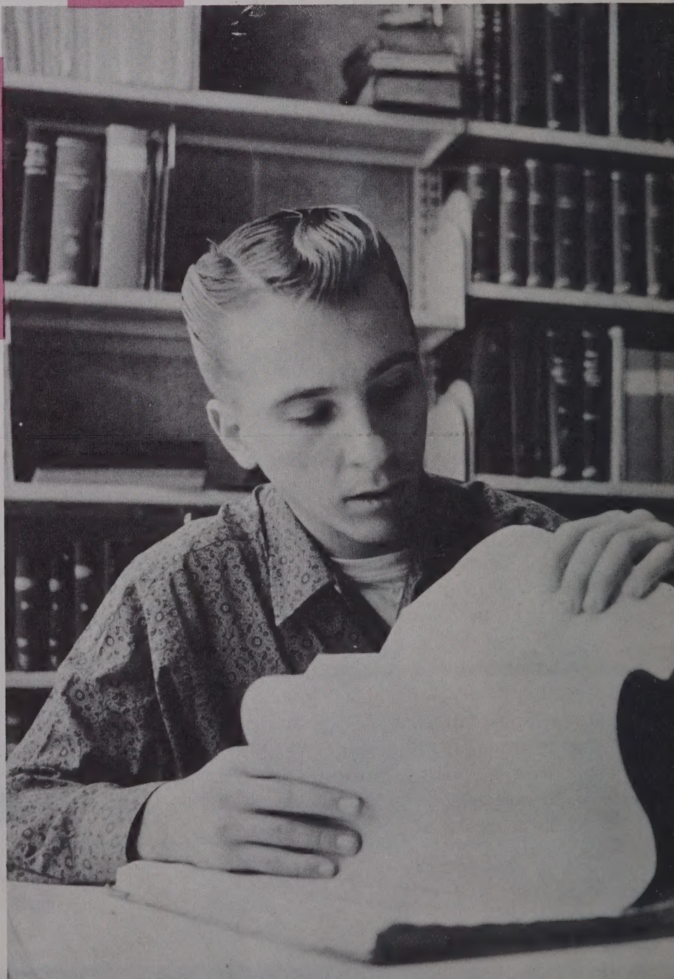
THE PO

As WGCS news announcer Earl checks the script for final corrections before broadcasting time.



In the Historical Archives, Earl scans newspapers of the Civil War era for any items on the conscientious objector.

After afternoon classes he leaves the Ad building to find an empty chair for study in the library.

RAIT OF A STUDENT

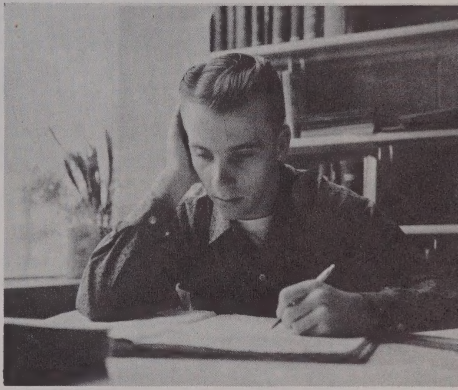
by Lois Weaver

Conversations and interviews with professors usually leave this interviewer overwhelmed by their high-speed, well-crammed schedules, but in a student interview it was noted that this pace is almost equaled. Earl Sears from Illinois expresses the situation quite well. For this second semester, Earl completed his year as president of the student YPCA while carrying a full class schedule that included student teaching. After these six weeks of supervised teaching in social studies, Earl was absorbed in meeting deadlines in Voice and Articulation, Speech Correction, International Relations, and History Seminar. For the seminar, he scoured newspapers, private letters, and books published in the 1860's to learn what position the conscientious objector held during the Civil War.

Even though history forms the bulk of his study, speech and related activities find a place of importance. Earl is versatile in speaking situations. It is not uncommon to hear him present the news over the college radio station or act as master of ceremonies or give a nonsensical address for some cause at a Men's Open House program. In a more serious tone he prepares for debates or a poetry reading or speech contest. Too, drama has become a means of expression as in the part of narrator in "Christ and the Concrete City."

Perhaps it is his perspective on history and his ability to communicate that qualify Earl for a new assignment this summer as a student assistant pastor at his home church of Metamora. He is to be responsible for an extension church as well as assisting the minister at Metamora. This expression of service reflects his coming three years of study at the Goshen Seminary.

Earl, however, is not exclusively devoted to his books, but takes time off for hunting, fishing, touring to the West Coast on a Gospel team or striking out for a summer of work on a railroad construction crew in Alaska. He also finds time to see his fiancee and to laugh with the fellows.



Class sessions end for the day, but it is only the beginning of study that is often interrupted by meetings.

Sidewalk conversation favors ping-pong rather than academic problems.

Down by the Dam . . .

. . . is a most likely place to be on a beautiful spring day—in spite of term papers and exam schedules. Students here are (l. to r.) Walter Smucker, Johanna Gehman, Loretta Weirich, and Jim Hallman.

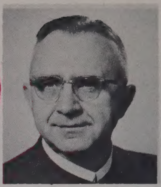
Also going to Germany for a year is Irene Hershberger of the Seminary office. She will serve at the MCC headquarters in Frankfurt.

James A. Miller, Assistant Professor of Music, has been awarded a two-year Danforth Foundation study grant to continue graduate work at the University of Michigan. This is where he earned his master's degree in 1956.

Norma Jean Weldy, Instructor in Nursing, will be enrolled as a graduate student at the University of Colorado. Ernest E. Miller, Professor of Psychology, plans to leave after the first semester to become principal of the Woodstock School in India.

Several faculty members are terminating their service for Goshen College. Leland Bachman, Director of Public Relations, will transfer to Hesston College this summer where he will serve as Business Manager and Director of Public Relations. Mabel Brunk of the Nursing faculty plans to stay on in her position at a children's hospital in Korea. Vera Good of the Teacher Education department has accepted a supervisory position in the elementary schools of Toronto, Canada. Ralph Wade has just finished graduate studies at Indiana University but wants to work as a professional singer. Fran Stieglitz of the English department has resigned in order to enroll in the Seminary.

PRESIDENT MININGER SAYS:



Culture Needs an Authority

The motto of Goshen College is "Culture for Service." The imagery used in the word service is that of one person, a servant, submitting himself to the authority of another, carrying out the will of another, and ministering to the needs of another. The motto therefore suggests that culture needs an authority outside of itself to which it submits. It should serve an end or purpose beyond itself. Furthermore, this purpose is to meet the needs of the one whom it serves. In other words, there can be no "culture for culture's sake," but culture is to become the servant of another.

The practical question for culture then is, to what authority is it to submit? What purposes shall culture serve? Whose needs is culture to meet? For Goshen College this question must be answered in the light of the Biblical view of the relationship of the disciple of Christ to human culture.

Jacob Enz, professor of Old Testament and Hebrew, lectures on "Biblical Theology," during the summer sessions at Elkhart.

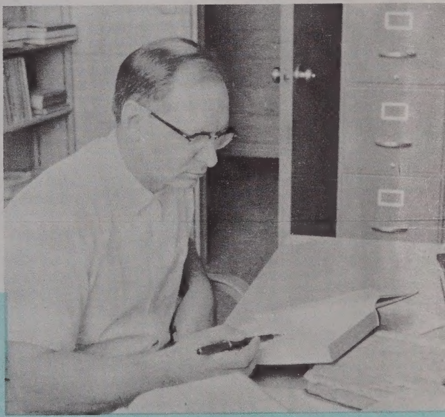
SEMINARY STUDIES go on, despite summer vacations, at the Associated Mennonite Biblical Seminaries. A total of nine courses was offered this summer in five summer sessions of two weeks each.

The Associated Seminaries, with headquarters in Elkhart, is a co-operative program of the Goshen College Biblical Seminary and the Mennonite Biblical Seminary of the General Conference Mennonite Church. Three full academic years have been completed under the new arrangement with substantial advantages for both schools.

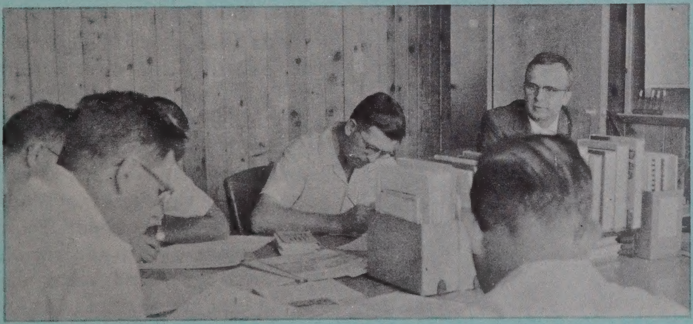
Goshen professors participating in the summer sessions were Millard Lind with a course on "Jeremiah," Paul Miller in an "Evangelism Seminar," and John C. Wenger, with "Theology of Menno Simons."

From the Elkhart faculty, Jacob Enz lectured on "Biblical Theology," Leland Harder led a study of "Rural and Urban Church," and President Erland Waltner taught "Use of the Bible in Preaching."

Two visiting professors shared in the summer's work: Walter Klaassen from Bethel College in Kansas, and Frank Peters of Canadian Mennonite Brethren Bible College in Winnipeg, Manitoba.



Millard Lind of the Seminary faculty works in his office this summer doing research for a doctoral thesis on holy war in the Old Testament. He hopes to complete the thesis by the fall of 1962. It will be submitted to Pittsburgh Theological Seminary.



Under the direction of associate professor Leland Harder a group of summer students study the "Rural and Urban Church."

Operation: INVESTIGATION

BY LOIS WEAVER

Dr. C. Frank Bishop is well prepared for his Nigerian investigation. He served as Extension Specialist for West Virginia University and has taught for years in the subjects of agricultural science.

The several hours' flight from Rome to Kano, Nigeria, suddenly immersed an American professor in a land and culture notably different from the West, the land and culture of Africa. Soon the American, Dr. C. F. Bishop, a professor of biology at Goshen College, resumed his travel to Port Harcourt. Here he left the plane and went on by land to the capital city, Enugu, of the eastern region of Nigeria.

There he met Prime Minister Okpata, who had requested agricultural assistance from the Mennonites. In fourteen short days, Dr. Bishop, with the members of the government's Agricultural Department, discussed and studied problems of crop production and soil productivity. They visited various areas to determine what assistance the people could use and what program should possibly be arranged. Dr. Bishop was sent for this purpose by the Mennonite Board of Missions in Elkhart.

In this region of Nigeria, with its eastern mountains that separate it from the French Cameroons and the Niger River as its western boundary, a tropical climate exists. Temperatures average 83 degrees F., and the average rainfall ranges from 15 to 140 inches per year. (Indiana averages about 30 inches per year). These two factors of moisture and heat are essential for plant growth. But in this region of Nigeria, the abundance of water and heat creates problems for growth. The heavy rains wash away the rich topsoil, and the high temperatures increase the rate of decomposition of organic material. This organic material contains the minerals and nutrients, and they are decomposed much faster than the plants can possibly use them. This combination of soil erosion and lack of minerals demands improved methods of conservation. Also, the methods of clearing land and keeping back the tropical vegetation need better solutions. Assistance is also necessary for the women—to show them the foods essential for a more healthful diet and to teach them the processes of food canning, drying, and storing.

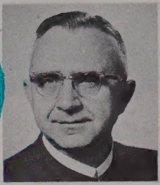
To offer an immediate solution is not Dr. Bishop's purpose. His attempts are centered about the possibility of establishing units of workers to co-operate with and assist the people in solving their problems. If the possibility for such units exists, the corps of workers needed will not only include the agriculturalist, but also the technician, the teacher, the nurse, and the home economist who would serve the people and the church. This program would become the means to a higher goal—that of giving oneself in Christian service.

On August 5, Dr. Bishop of the Goshen faculty flew to Nigeria to confer with government officials and to study the agricultural conditions in that country.

PRESIDENT MININGER SAYS:



"It is good for me
that I have been afflicted;
that I might learn thy statutes."
—Psalm 119:71.

During the past six months the Mininger family has learned much about the discipline of suffering. Since so many friends have expressed their concern and have assured us of their prayers, it seems appropriate to report briefly on what the experience has meant to us.

We have learned again that it is when we come to the end of our own resources and acknowledge our helplessness that God reveals Himself to us. It is only when we come to the despair of self and trust God completely that He can begin to work His will in our lives. His sovereignty and His providence have constantly reassured us. We can testify to His faithfulness as He supplied grace in time of need. The presence of the Holy Spirit was a constant source of strength.

We have also come to realize anew that the work which we do for God is not as important as the completeness of our consecration to Him. God has taught us that the circumstances in which we find ourselves compose the sphere in which He can fulfill His purpose for us at that time.

The response of the Christian brotherhood to our needs has been a humbling and heartwarming experience. Colleagues and friends have been most helpful and understanding.

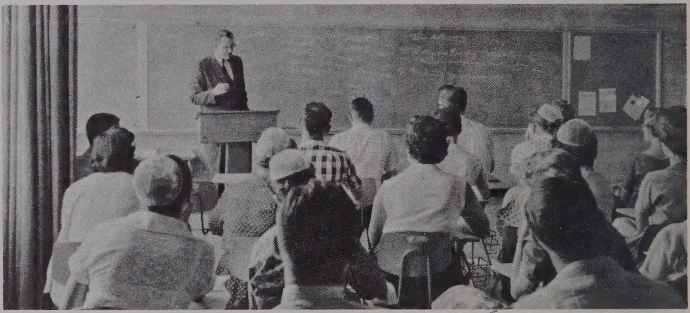
Because of the experiences of the past few months we should be better able to minister to others. "Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort; who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God" (II Corinthians 1:3, 4).

Writers on Campus

From East and West, Mennonite writers congregated on the Goshen campus, July 10-14, for a Mennonite Writers' Conference.

Among the featured speakers were Martin E. Marty, associate editor of the Christian Century, and Fred Cloud, youth editor for the Methodist Church.

One of the continuing services of Goshen College is to provide the use of its facilities for such gatherings. Each year some 15 to 20 major conferences or meetings are held on campus.



Meeting on the Goshen campus, Mennonite writers study the techniques of "Article Writing" under the leadership of Fred Cloud, Methodist writer and editor.

Willard Roth, editor of youth publications at Herald Press, confers with Royal and Evelyn Bauer at the recent Mennonite Writers' Conference.

Professor C. F. Bishop, Goshen College Biologist, returned from an investigation of Eastern Nigeria, urging the College to train technologists and teachers as self supporting missionaries.

Dr. Bishop was sent by the Mission Board and the College in order to explore missionary service possibilities in Nigeria and to determine what types of persons would be accepted by that country. Like many other emerging nations, Nigeria is hesitant about accepting American missionaries. They want highly skilled persons able to contribute to the economic progress of their country.

Dr. Bishop also pointed out the new University of Nigeria at Ksukka as an opportunity for mission-minded professors. Bishop, in an Elkhart Truth story, said, "Nigeria is a country in a hurry. Bender Resigns Duties As Dean

H. S. Bender, Dean of the Goshen College Biblical Seminary, has submitted his resignation as dean of the seminary to President Mininger. The resignation will become effective September 1, 1962.

Dean Bender named the following reasons for his action: he will reach the age of 65 next summer; he is eager to have more time for writing and research; and he wishes to be relieved of the strain of administrative work.

Dean Bender will continue on the seminary faculty as Professor of Church History. The Board of Overseers has authorized President Mininger to begin immediately to find a new dean, and the President said he will appoint an advisory committee to help him. He said also that Dean Bender may be requested to remain at his post for an additional year since it may not be possible to select a new dean by September of 1962.

"It is with a deep sense of responsibility," said President Mininger, "that we begin to search for a new dean of the Goshen College Biblical Seminary. This decision is of great importance and will have far reaching consequences. We welcome the prayers and counsel of the Goshen College family as we undertake this task."

H. S. Bender became dean of Goshen College in 1931 and dean of the seminary in 1944. During the past 18 years he has directed its development, including the construction of the new Seminary Building.

Dr. Bender holds numerous responsibilities in the Mennonite Church including President of Mennonite World Conference, Editor of the Mennonite Encyclopedia, Chairman of the Historical and Research Committee, Chairman of the Peace Problems Committee, and assistant secretary of the Mennonite Central Committee.

Church Program For Aging Studied

A banquet honoring 48 citizens 80 or more years old was held during the Conference for Problems of the Aged and Aging on Wednesday, Nov. 1. The honored guests were each given a copy of a book "The Best is Yet to Be", written by Dr. Paul Maves who was speaker at the banquet. Here Mrs. T. K. Hershey, pioneer missionary to Argentina, chats with Dr. Maves as he autographs her copy of his book. Ed Oyer, left, Eureka, Ill., stands waiting to have his book autographed. Standing in line to the right is Mrs. Emma Leininger, Elkhart, Ind.

A three day conference on the church and its older people was held on campus October 31-November 2. The conference theme was "Implementing the Church Program for the Aging and the Aged."

Over 150 out of town ministers, church leaders and senior citizens registered at the meetings. Forty-eight persons 80 or more years of age were honored guests at a banquet Wednesday evening.

Eight noted authorities addressed the group on various subjects and spoke to the problems of the aging and aged. These addresses were the basis for further discussion in smaller groups throughout the three days of meetings. Outstanding persons among the eight were Bruce Savage, former Federal Housing Commissioner, Paul B. Maves, professor of Religious Education at Drew University and member of the Board of Directors of The National Council on the Aging and Dr. James Doty, Director of Pastoral Care and Counseling for the Methodist Church—Indiana area.

The conference was sponsored by a number of church agencies including Goshen College and the Mennonite Board of Education. Dr. E. E. Miller, Professor of Psychology, was chairman of the planning and program committee. Dr. Miller is one of the church's outstanding leaders in the problems of aging and is also assisting The Elkhart County government in that area.

Not long ago a friend commented to me upon a popular misconception of time. Instead of the past, present and future, he insisted there is no present. The fleeting next second of the future instantaneously becomes the immediate moment of the past. We are always living in our "yesterdays"—and ever anticipating our tomorrows.

This is also true of institutions such as Goshen College, which explains my choice of title for this new column.

For instance . . . we here on campus, are faced with the problem of being completely loyal to the best in the heritage of our brotherhood while at the same time anticipating what thought and action is required for dynamic and dedicated Christian living and witnessing in each tomorrow which the Lord may grant us.

This basic problem must be solved by the church, not in terms of individual preferences, nor yet on the basis of tradition-rich customs—but rather in terms of the clear demands of God's Word interpreted under the direction of the Holy Spirit.

As my friend said, "Our yesterdays are but a reflection of our visions for tomorrow."

What is tomorrow's vision for Goshen? Let me say at once that whatever vision there may be, bricks and mortar remain only coincidental . . . the means to accomplish an end.

Our Mennonite Church will need to face up to some basic decisions in the not too distant future and we may as well begin thinking about the answers. For instance:

What is the responsibility of our church in higher education? Is the idea of a church college basically sound or are there other and better ways by which the church should function in the field of higher education? Can the church carry out its mission tomorrow without the teaching and witness of the church college? How can Goshen College express more faithfully in its life, educational program and organization, its true character as a church college?

In future issues of the BULLETIN I will attempt to answer these and other questions with what I believe to be the prevailing concept here on our campus.

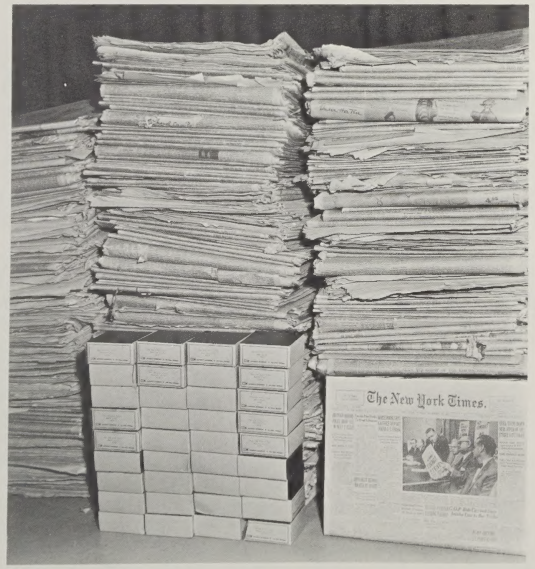
In the meantime, you can be helpful if you take time to write me your views on any of the above questions. I would appreciate hearing from many of you.

Classes Present MicrofilmedTimes

One year's edition of the New York Times, shown below, takes up more than 16 square feet of precious shelf space per year in Goshen College's library. Back issues of the Times containing a wealth of recent world and American history have gone largely unused in past years because they are cumbersome and inaccessible.

Thanks to the classes of 1961 and 1911 and microfilm, the campaign issues of 1952 and valuable information on literally thousands of other subjects as recorded in the New York Times will be easy to find, easy to file and easy to preserve.

Last year's graduating class presented the College with a microfilm viewer and two year's (1950 and 1951) editions of the Times. The class of 1911, on their 50th anniversary last spring, added 1952 to the growing collection of microfilmed newspapers.



Record Crowd Attends Businessmen's Dinner

Charles H. Hoeflich

Charles H. Hoeflich, vice-president of the Philadelphia National Bank and a member of the Goshen College Board of Overseers, addressed a record attendance of over 775 at the annual Businessmen's Dinner this fall. He spoke on 'The Complex Christian."

Admission to the chicken barbeque dinner was by ticket only this year—a new twist in an old tradition. Tickets were distributed through the Goshen College counselors in each congregation in the constituency. A number of men came early for fellowship and tours of the campus before dinner.

After President Mininger's report, Hoeflich addressed the men challenging all Christians and Mennonites in particular, to witness to the present day world and the dilemma it faces. Besides acknowledging the problems connected with witnessing in a changing civilization, he expressed the need for "presenting the way of the New Testament life as a conscience to the world."

"And ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free," quoted Hoeflich. "The excitement of truth as set forth nineteen hundred years ago, if unleashed today, can turn the world about—God has promised it," he asserted. Urging his audience to witness without making compromises, Hoeflich outlined six steps toward exercising the trust of the Truth given to Christians today; one—determination; two—seek to find what part of the world we can influence and move in that direction; three — plan ahead; four — never apologize for being a Christian or a Mennonite; five — stop thinking of things and think of Christ; six — serve.

Charles Hoeflich is a member of the Blooming Glen Mennonite Church. He chose the Mennonite denomination as his church home a few years ago when he became a Christian because of its loyal adherence to New Testament teachings.

Businessmen from Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ontario and Indiana enjoy the opportunity to become acquainted while enjoying their barbequed chicken dinner. They also have opportunity to hear a leading Christian layman speak, and to learn more about Goshen College.

Yoder, Instructor in the Education Department, will assist part time in the Personnel Office for the remainder of the year. A temporary dean of men for the 1962-63 school year has not yet been secured.

The 1961 Maple Leaf, edited by Gordon Zook, received an All-American honor rating from the Associated Collegiate Press. The rating represents highest achievement and is granted to only 26 of the more than 250 college annuals in competition. The Maple Leaf was the only yearbook in its class to earn the award. Goshen's 1958 annual also won the All-American title while the next two editions received First Class ratings.

Dr. J. C. Wenger's book, The Mennonites in Indiana and Michigan, was released by the Herald Press December 1. He is author of another recent book, Even Unto Death released by the John Knox Press October 9.

Dr. Karl Massanari received a three year appointment to the Visitation and Appraisal Committee of the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education. This national committee representing the Midwestern section of NCATE, reviews the reports of visiting teams to schools applying for accreditation then makes a recommendation to the National Council. Dr. Massanari, Indiana's only representative, will represent the small liberal arts colleges in the midwest.

WGCS, Goshen College's FM radio station, expanded its broadcast schedule this month. Broadcasts begin at 6 P.M. doubling the length of "Evening Concert", a program of classical music. Under the direction of students Mary Miller and Bill Davidson and faculty advisors Dr. Roy Umble and J. F. Swartzendruber, WGCS is enriching its music library and feature programs. The station also broadcasts chapel and church services.

Internal Revenue Service is tightening up on regulation of year end giving. Regulation, Section 1.170-1, indicates that a contribution is deductible when paid. A check is deductible in the year it is given and mailed. It may be cashed in the following year, but must be written and delivered (or postmarked) in the year for which deduction is desired.

If you want your 1961 contributions to Goshen College or other charities to be deductible on your 1961 personal tax return, please issue your check on or before Dec. 31, and see that the envelope is postmarked no later than Dec. 31.

H. S. Bender, Dean of the Goshen College Biblical Seminary, has submitted his resignation as dean of the seminary to President Mininger. The resignation will become effective September 1, 1962.

Dean Bender named the following reasons for his action: he will reach the age of 65 next summer; he is eager to have more time for writing and research; and he wishes to be relieved of the strain of administrative work.

Dean Bender will continue on the seminary faculty as Professor of Church History. The Board of Overseers has authorized President Mininger to begin immediately to find a new dean, and the President said he will appoint an advisory committee to help him. He said also that Dean Bender may be requested to remain at his post for an additional year since it may not be possible to select a new dean by September of 1962.

"It is with a deep sense of responsibility," said President Mininger, "that we begin to search for a new dean of the Goshen College Biblical Seminary. This decision is of great importance and will have far reaching consequences. We welcome the prayers and counsel of the Goshen College family as we undertake this task."

H. S. Bender became dean of Goshen College in 1931 and dean of the seminary in 1944. During the past 18 years he has directed its development, including the construction of the new Seminary Building.

Dr. Bender holds numerous responsibilities in the Mennonite Church including President of Mennonite World Conference, Editor of the Mennonite Encyclopedia, Chairman of the Historical and Research Committee, Chairman of the Peace Problems Committee, and assistant secretary of the Mennonite Central Committee.

The importance of training people in skills which enable them to serve young, fast developing Nigeria is Dr. Bishop's main concern since returning from his investigation. John Mosemann (left), pastor of the College Mennonite Church and President of the Mennonite Board of Missions and Charities and Carl Kreider, (right), Dean of the College, discuss with him the joint effort of the Mission Board and the College to train persons who can meet the needs of Nigeria and other mission areas more effectively.

The springboard of Homecoming festivities at Goshen College is the Alumni banquet on Thanksgiving day. Many grads, like those pictured, recounted College days and learning experiences at their alma mater before taking part in other Homecoming events.

Evangelistic meetings lasting into December were held on campus under the direction of Paul Erb, editor of the Gospel Herald and former faculty member. Stressing "The Call to Commitment," Paul Erb presented Christian concepts to build an intelligent faith, and urged new and deeper commitment to Christ on the part of students and faculty. Harold Bauman, pastor to students, worked closely with the evangelist in planning the week's events.

For two days in late November YPCA officers from Hesston, EMC and Goshen studied the role of their organizations in Student-Homechurch relationships. Each of the three Y's prepared a paper on one specific phase of the question to be shared with the other two groups and discussed in small group sessions like the one pictured above.

The students pictured demonstrate the voluntary industry which resulted in more than $12,400 Work Drive earnings. $9,438.08 was given to the College toward the Library fund and $3,000 was given to Hope Waddell School in Nigeria because students felt motivated to share with that sister school which desperately needs equipment.

Nearly 50 alumni attended a fellowship for graduate students during Homecoming. Thirteen different graduate schools were represented at the informal gathering. J. Kenneth Hoober, University of Michigan, presented a paper discussing what form student fellowships should take to help fulfil the Christian calling on graduate school campuses.

Rev. Byron Lamson, Free Methodist Church minister, and Dorsa Mishler, Personnel Secretary of the Mennonite Board of Missions and Charities, shown with student, Richard Yoder, were on campus for a week in the interest of Missions. Rev. Lamson was Chapel speaker and counselor and Dorsa Mishler talked with students interested in serving with the Mission Board.

GOSHEN COLLEGE BULLETIN

Vol. LV No. 11 September, 1961

Harold Heatwole, GC grad of 1955, went to the virgin forests of Panama this summer to direct a research expedition. The expedition cook, Chincoro, is seated at left.

EXPEDITION IN PANAMA

Bagging a recently caught specimen are (l. to r.) Dr. Sexton, Heatwole, and Torres, a student helper from Puerto Rico. The group is studying wildlife along the proposed route of the Pan-American highway.

WHAT EFFECT does human civilization have upon the world's plant and animal life?

This question, already discussed in the Bible, will be given an up-to-date factual documentation, if the research efforts of Harold Heatwole are successfully completed.

Harold spent the summer months studying plant and animal life in the virgin forests of Panama. Here in the Darian Province exists one of the few undisturbed natural forests of the world. Harold and his co-workers are making a scientific description of natural life in this area before the projected Pan-American highway invades this primitive jungle province, bringing the impact of Western civilization.

As the highway is built in years to come, closing the gap between Panama City and Colombia, the forest environment will be affected and changed by the coming of civilization. The long-range goal of this project is to study the changes caused by man's activity.

This Indian hut served as home and laboratory for the expedition. Sometimes as many as fifteen Indians were living in the hut besides the five Americans connected with the project.

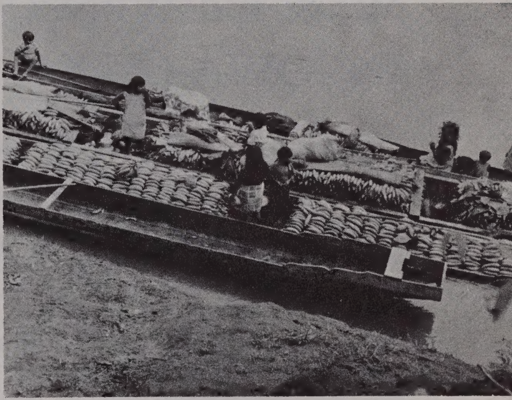
The National Science Foundation is investing $27,000 in the project. This will support summer expeditions for three years. Working with Harold on the project is Dr. Owen Sexton of Washington University in St. Louis, plus three graduate students from Wisconsin and Puerto Rico and a number of Indian helpers.

In the six years since graduating from Goshen College, Harold's experience has been an eventful one. Last year he taught biology at the University of Puerto Rico. He was also appointed by the university to establish and direct a biological research station in the high altitude rain forest on the eastern edge of the island.

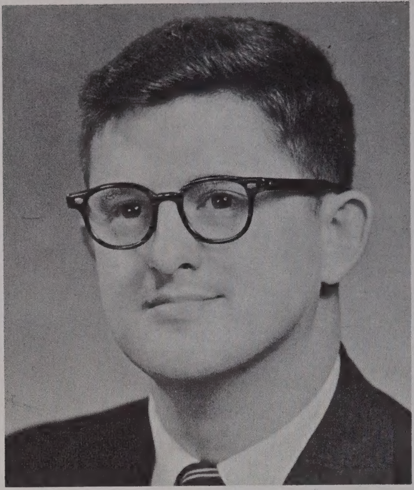
From 1955-59 Harold was at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor where he earned an M.S. and Ph.D. in zoology. He also served as a teaching fellow and later as an instructor.

No less than 10 major papers and articles from his pen have seen their way into print. He is a regular correspondent for the Caribbean Journal of Natural Science.

While Harold was tramping through the jungles of Panama, his wife, Audry (Yoder) 56, continued her own graduate studies at the University of Michigan. She is studying in the field of art history.



Travel in the jungles of Panama is either on foot or by canoe. These native canoes are about thirty feet long and weigh nearly 500 pounds. They are made out of hollowed logs.



Hobart Yoder is a teacher of retarded children in Iowa City.

Work and Witness IN IOWA CITY

TEACHING mentally retarded children is Hobart Yoder's task in one of Iowa City's junior high schools. These pupils are a year or more older than most seventh, eighth, and ninth graders, but are working at a level usually found in the second to sixth grades.

Hobart, who graduated from Goshen in 1954, is well qualified for his work, having earned his master's degree in special education at the State University of Iowa.

Besides teaching, Hobart and his wife Lois (Yoder) x54, are helping to start and build a church in Cedar Bluffs, a small village 17 miles northeast of Iowa City. Here in a community that has no Protestant churches within a radius of 10 miles, they have found a group of "earnest seekers."

Attendance at the church averages around 45, with at least half being adults. Hobart serves as Sunday-school superintendent, teaches a class of teen-agers, and spends at least one evening a week visiting homes in the community.

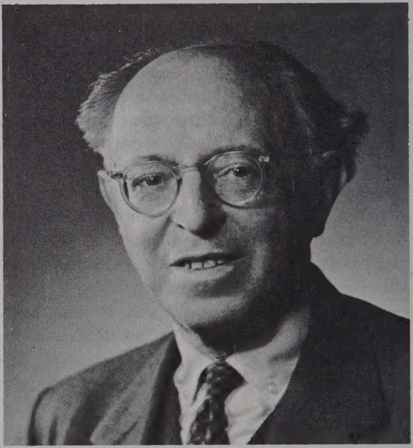
Friedmann Retires

DR. ROBERT FRIEDMANN, professor of history, has retired from his post at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. Coming at this same time is the appearance of his latest book, Hutterite Studies, issued by Herald Press, Scottdale, Pa.

Dr. Friedmann is an authority on Mennonite history and a major contributor to the recent four-volume Mennonite Encyclopedia. His latest book gathers together in one volume the essays and studies which have grown out of a lifetime of research in the history of the Hutterian wing of the Anabaptist movement. An earlier book by Friedmann was entitled Mennonite Piety Through the Centuries.

Friedmann received his Ph.D. from the University of Vienna nearly 20 years before he got his B.A. from Goshen College (1943). He also served on the GC faculty for a short time before joining the faculty of Western Michigan University in 1945. Under his direction courses in philosophy were first introduced at Western.

Dr. Friedmann is a member of the Eighth Street Mennonite Church in Goshen.



Dr. Robert Friedmann.

CORRECTION: Instead of attending Goshen College in 1906 as indicated in the last Newsletter, Dr. Benjamin Gerig graduated from GC after attending from 1914-17.

Personals

Roland Landes is beginning his second year as physical education teacher at the Quakertown Junior High School in Pennsylvania. He also coaches football and basketball.

Roland, a former basketball star at GC, entered I-W service after graduating from Goshen in 1954. He worked at the Hollidaysburg State Hospital in Pennsylvania. "My duties," he recalls, "were various, ranging from therapy to chasing those trying to escape."

In 1956, Roland and his wife, Darlene (Metzler) 54, went to Puerto Rico for a two-year Voluntary Service term. Upon returning to the States, he enrolled at Temple University to prepare for his present assignment.

Librarian Ruth Roth has accepted a position at the Bradley University Library, Peoria, Ill. Ruth graduated from Goshen in 1948 and from Indiana University with an M.A. in Library Science in 1957.

Among GC alumni receiving advanced degrees this summer, the following have come to our attention: Lester Glick, Doctor of Social Work at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.; Aaron Longacre, M.D., at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa.; Truman Mast, M.D., and Glen Miller, M.D., at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio; Fred Speckeen, Ph.D., in rhetoric and public address at Michigan State University in East Lansing; Donald Wyse, M.D., Marion Wenger, M.A., and Arlen Miller, M. of Social Work, at Ohio State University in Columbus; Paul M. Yoder, Ph.D. in music education at Florida State University in Tallahassee.

Lois Davidson, GC graduate of 1951, has returned for furlough after a term of missionary service in Southern Rhodesia.

Blosser and Co.

The paint on your new lawn mower may have been developed by Howard Blosser, a Goshen graduate of 1939. Howard works as a "developmental chemist" for the Lowe Bros. Paint Company of Dayton, Ohio.

Experimenting with a number of new "miracle" resins and paint materials, it is Howard's job to perfect new paint formulas that fit the needs of industrial users. Often a company will request a new paint finish that meets certain standards of color, texture, permanence, or economy of production. Howard's task is to find and test a paint formula that will meet these specifications.

In the six years that he has been working in the paint industry, Howard has had a major part in preparing several types of finishes that are showing real promise and are moving into increased production.

The Blossers live at 8829 Singer Road, about 12 miles from downtown Dayton. Their new house was built largely by their own efforts.

They are active members of an emerging Mennonite congregation in Dayton. Howard serves as Sunday-school teacher, chorister, and a member on various committees, He also serves on the church council or the board of trustees. His wife Eva (Stauffer) 49, is president of the WMSA, church librarian, and has served on the extension committee. The church currently has a membership of about 35 persons, a Sunday-school attendance of around 50, and a summer Bible school attendance this year which averaged 145.

Howard earned his M.Sc. at Ohio State University in 1955, and has also done some graduate study at Kent State University.

October 27, 1961

Dear Fellow Parents:

During the past few weeks it has been my very genuine pleasure to meet many of your sons and daughters who are at Goshen College - some for the first time and others who have been here for one or mor years. They are an alert and eager group and it is a thrill to see ther on the campus, hear them sing in Chapel and talk with them in my office.

We have now completed six full weeks of classes. The final enrollment of 914 full time students represents an increase of 11% over last year. The freshman class has 284 students, an increase of 14% over last year. As you can imagine, the increase in enrollment has created a bit of a problem. We are having trouble housing all our men -- even though C. Z. Yoder Hall, our new men's dormitory, has been in use only one year. We were forced to place sixty-nine men in housing off campus -- a situation neither we nor they like, and we hav not yet figured out how 914 students can use the 120 chairs available i the library!

As I become acquainted with your sons and daughters and as I know the homes and churches from which they come, it is becoming increasingly clear that the quiet seclusion of our brotherhood as many of us remember it from childhood is passing. We are being thrust into the midstream of life in America and are facing problems and opportunities that are new to us. Many of us are wondering whether our sons and daughters will remain true to their Christian heritage. Will they assume the responsibilities of Christian discipleship as they become increasingly exposed to broadened vistas and as they survey a space age which appears to have no horizons?

All of us who carry responsibility at Goshen College are concerned that our Mennonite brotherhood will emerge as an effective part of the living and functioning Church of Christ which is both genuinely separate from the world and significantly witnessing to the world. In order to help our students become participating members of that church we are seeking to achieve three objectives for every student who is entrusted to us:

--The deepening of his Christian commitment.
--The sharpening of his Christian conscience.
--The development of his Christian competence (or his God given talents).

How do we seek to do this? A desire is one thing: the accomplishment may be something else. One of the channels is of course the curriculum and the instruction carried on by our teachers in the classroom. This is important and is well known. In addition to this Goshen College seeks to provide the best possible guidance and counsel to our students on an individual and personal basis. We think of each student as an individual with unique needs and talents and we do not want a single student to get lost in the "crowd." Our work along this line may be less well known than the formal academic program.

The life of students outside of the classroom is under the direction of Atlee Beechy, Dean of Students and the guidance of the religious life of the college community is the responsibility of Harold Bauman, Pastor to Students. These two men, with the capable staff, constitute an effective team in guiding the extra-curricular activities of the campus and in counselling with students when they face personal problems or spiritual crises. They also work in close cooperation with the members of the teaching faculty.

There are many times when our ability to help a student is dependent upon the cooperation of parents. Sometimes you become aware of the presence of serious problems in the lives of your sons or daughters before we do. If you will alert us to your concerns or pass on to us information that will enable us to be more helpful, we will greatly appreciate it. You should feel free to write to the Dean of Students, Dean of Men, Dean of Women, or Pastor to Students at any time.

Now permit me a few words in another vein. Each year it has been the delightful and traditional privilege of Mary (Mrs. Mininger) and me to preside at a reception for freshmen. There they were again this year, coming down the receiving line --- some a bit timid --- others more assured --- all of them open faced, frank and trusting. It was obvious that they were not quite sure of the future, yet wanted very much to be a part of it. Some, no doubt, will be stronger than others in their ability to withstand the heat of the spiritual trials which will ultimately temper their faith to an enduring quality. I remembered too that most of them ranked above the average in their high school classes -- a tribute to their parents and to the use of their opportunities in high school.

During the past few weeks as the cold war has become more intense and the nations of the world are moving closer to actual military conflict and possible nuclear war, I remembered the recent sessions of our Mennonite General Conference at Johnstown, Pennsylvania. Again and again the speakers gave evidence of their awareness of the world crisis and its possible implications for those of us who are non-resistant Christians. One speaker suggested that this might be the last session of Mennonite General Conference. Is the time upon us, I wondered, when yet more chapters are about to be added to our "Book of Martyrs"?

These two pictures are frequently before me -- the open faced, frank and trusting freshmen who have recently enrolled at Goshen College and the uncertain days that are ahead for the faithful church. I turn to my work realizing that it is our task to prepare students to be a part of the faithful church -- if God grants us survival.

Before I close, may I express a personal word of appreciation for the concern expressed by many of you for my physical well being during the recent past. I had pretty well recovered from a surgical fusion of my lower vertebrae when it became necessary to return to the hospital on October 6 for the removal by surgery of a kidney stone. I am recovering satisfactorily and am again back at my desk. Truly my personal blessings have been many during the past year and I am grateful to God for the prospect of good health ahead.

Don't forget - write to me or my colleagues on any matter of mutual concern. We are laborers together in the building of His Kingdom.

Yours in Christ,

Paul Mininger

Lined with old books and documents, J. C. Wenger's study reflects years of interest in historical research.

More Books by Wenger

J. C. Wenger has done it again. Last month the John Knox Press released another book written by Professor Wenger. This is Wenger's eighth book and is entitled Even unto Death. Besides these books, he has also written numerous articles for a wide variety of publications, church periodicals, and even the Encyclopaedia Britannica and the Encyclopedia Americana.

But there is even more to come. On Dec. 1, Herald Press will release another major work, also by J. C. Wenger. Based on 16 years of careful firsthand research, this history of the Mennonites in Indiana and Michigan has grown to 500 pages in length, and is profusely illustrated. The people in the churches about whom Dr. Wenger writes have been well prepared for the appearance of this book by his numerous letters, questionnaires, and repeated trips to their communities, visiting especially the old people with clear memories, the graveyards, and the county archives.

Although limited in the scope of its subject matter, the book is amazing for the thoroughness with which it covers the chosen field of inquiry, and it may therefore prove to be of wide interest. In many respects it is Wenger's most important historical book, certainly the one on which he worked the hardest and the longest. An example of its comprehensive detail is seen in that Wenger has produced a short biography of every deacon, preacher, or bishop (both living and dead) who has been associated with the more than one hundred congregations covered in the study.

Besides those whose own physical or spiritual history is contained within the scope of Wenger's study, many other persons will undoubtedly be interested in the book, partly because of the wide influence exerted by the Mennonites of Indiana and Michigan upon the world-wide Mennonite brotherhood, and partly too because Wenger has reached out to include a short account of such related groups as the Brethren, Friends, Brethren in Christ, and the Apostolic Christian Church.

The book, which will retail for $7.95, is being offered by Herald Press at a prepublication rate of $6.50 (until Dec. 1).

J. C. Wenger's other recent book, Even unto Death, is also historical in character, as are several of his other published works. This is an attempt to give the modern reader a sympathetic and inspiring account of the early Anabaptist movement. Wenger's thesis in this small volume is that Protestantism owes to the Anabaptists a great debt of gratitude, both for their insights into the nature of Christianity and for their fearless persistence in the truth even unto death. Drawing heavily upon the letters, tracts, books, confessions, and court testimonies of the period, Wenger traces the origin and rapid spread of Anabaptism in the sixteenth century.

Who's Who

The latest edition of Who's Who Among American Women includes a reference to at least one Goshen College graduate. Dr. Ruth E. Mendenhall Barrett is the person who gained this distinction. She is currently serving as consulting pathologist at the Veterans Hospital of Montrose, N.Y.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Owen Mendenhall of Goshen. Both of them are also graduates of GC, Mrs. Mendenhall (Maude) having earned her degree in 1933, and Owen in 1947.

Ruth obtained her medical education at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., after having graduated from Goshen College in 1944.

She is the mother of two boys and is active in various community organizations, including the local housing authority. The Barretts live in Mount Kisco, N.Y.

Alumnus in New York

Charles Burkhart, a resident of New York City for the past several years, started teaching this fall as a full-time professor at Queens College, Flushing, N.Y. This is one of the schools in the New York City system.

He is also in the midst of writing a book on musical analysis. It has been accepted for publication by the Holt, Rinehart, and Winston Company and is designed for classes in musical analysis. A title for the book has not yet been selected.

Besides all this, Charles also finds time for occasional piano recitals and appearances. During the summer he taught at Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart.

Charles graduated from Goshen College in 1950, and will be known to many of the older alumni as the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Burkhart of Goshen. He lives at 1349 Lexington Avenue.

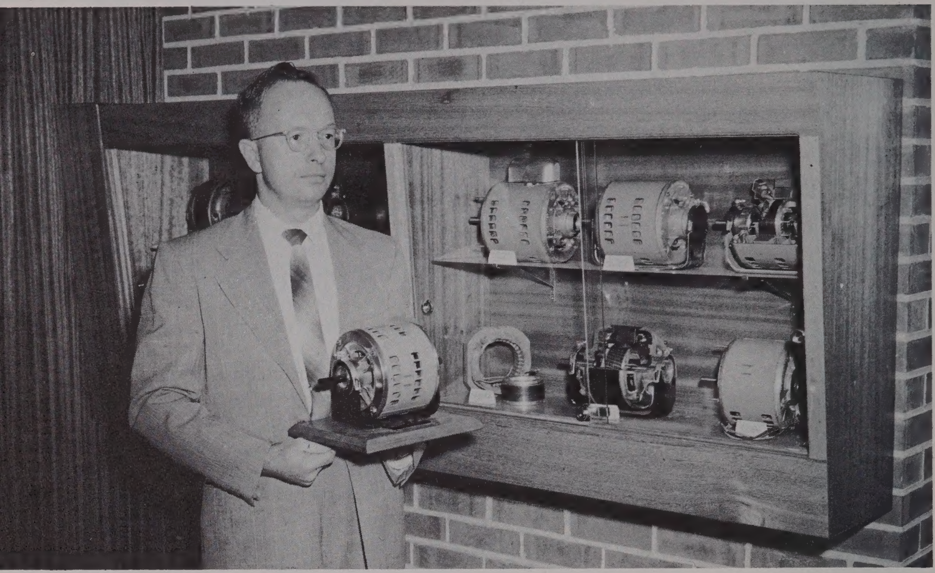
Motors to Spare



As Advanced Development Engineer, Doran Hershberger plays a key role in the production of these G.E. appliance motors.

Next time the repairman comes to fix your automatic washer, ask him if yours is equipped with a General Electric motor. If the answer is "yes" (and if it isn't the motor which is causing trouble), you might go on to explain that one of your fellow alumni from Goshen College is the Advanced Development Engineer at the G. E. plant which makes all these motors.

The alumnus is Doran Hershberger who graduated from Goshen College in 1946. He earned his degree in electrical engineering from Case Institute of Technology before coming to Goshen, and has been employed by G. E. ever since leaving Goshen. His first three years in industry were spent in a technical study program which involved both classwork and three-month assignments in various engineering sections.

After completing these studies, he accepted a position in G. E.'s plant at Fort Wayne, Ind., as a development engineer. For seven years he worked in Fort Wayne on all types of small motors and generators. Then in 1956, he moved to De Kalb, Ill., and became the Advanced Development Engineer in G. E.'s Appliance Motor Department.

The highly automated factory in De Kalb covers 65 acres of land (400,000 square feet of floor space) and reaches over into Murfreesboro, Tenn. With the help of only 1,200 employees approximately 12,000 motors roll off the assembly line every day.

Except for two appliance companies that produce their own motors, this G. E. plant furnishes small electric motors for all the major appliance manufacturers in the United States. Thus a sizable percentage of the washers, dryers, combination washer-dryers, dishwashers, and food-waste disposers now being manufactured are powered by electric motors produced in this plant. The motors vary from $\frac{1}{6}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ horsepower and are designed to meet each customer's requirements.

Doran and his family—Emilie (Loeffler), David 10, and Linda 7—live in Sycamore, Ill., about five miles north of De Kalb.

I. E. Burkhart Resigns

During the semester, President Paul Mininger announced the resignation of his Executive Assistant, I. E. Burkhart.

Burkhart, who has reached the voluntary retirement age, served as a teacher and administrative officer at both Hesston and Goshen colleges over a period of 32 years.

Reasons given by Burkhart for his resignation were age, preservation of health, and family interests. He was responsible for all Goshen's fund-raising activities from 1937 to 1956 and since then has been in charge of the deferred giving program. These activities require strenuous travel and many personal contacts in the interests of gift annuities, bequests, and special gifts.

Burkhart graduated from Hesston Academy in June of 1922. He was ordained to the ministry on the Sunday following graduation in his home church at Floradale, Ont. That summer he worked under the direction of the Ontario Mennonite Mission Board.

After two more years of study at Hesston, the Mennonite Board of Education urged Burkhart to finish his college work, then take graduate study to prepare to join the faculty at Hesston College. He completed his graduate study for the M.A. degree in history at the University of Pittsburgh in three summers. During the three school years between 1926 and 1929, he completed studies for the Th.M. degree at Goshen College and Southern Baptist Seminary.

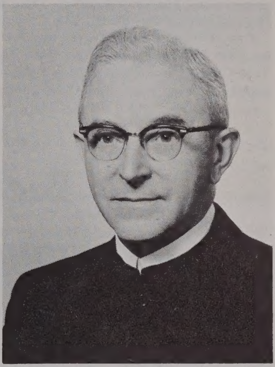
In 1927, Burkhart was married to Gladys Loucks of Scottdale, Pa. Besides the place which Mrs. Burkhart has filled in the home and as a helper to her husband in his varied service, she herself was matron at Goshen College from 1924-26 and the year 1926-27 she was Dean of Women here.

The Burkharts moved to Hesston in the fall of 1929, where he taught in the Bible department and served as pastor of the college church until 1934. Then they moved to Goshen and he joined the Goshen faculty as professor of Bible.

In looking back, Burkhart says it was not without an intense personal struggle that he took up the position of Financial Field Secretary in 1937. Due to a need for funds supplementary to tuition, he was asked to transfer from the teaching faculty to the administrative staff to devote his energies to the financial program of the college.

In addition to the solicitation of funds, Burkhart's assignment also included representing higher education to the churches and representing the desires of the churches to the college.

During the years he was Financial Field Secretary he found it necessary to fill speaking engagements in churches throughout the constituency in order to represent the cause of higher education. He averaged between 80 and 100 public addresses each year.



In 1956, Burkhart entered a more specialized type of fund raising. As Executive Assistant to the President, he concentrated in the area of bequests, annuities, and property gifts.

During the nearly one-third century that he was connected with the two colleges, Burkhart served under five presidents: at Hesston, Daniel H. Bender and Milo Kauffman, and at Goshen, Sanford C. Yoder, Ernest E. Miller, and Paul Mininger.

President Mininger, in accepting the resignation, commended Burkhart for his many years of service to Goshen College. "Over these many years, you have succeeded in securing funds from the church which have enabled the college to pay off indebtedness, balance its operating budget, construct essential buildings, and increase the permanent assets of the college," said the President.

HOME-COMING

Returning alumni will hear Richard Dyer-Bennet in a folk music lecture and performance on Nov. 24, during the Home-Coming Weekend at GC this year.

On Thursday the after-dinner theme is "Pilgrim's Progress." In the evening the college orchestra and choruses will be featured. New in the schedule this year is a meeting of Mennonite graduate students from university campuses.
